After having given us the first 7" fix a couple of month ago, us leeches out there craved for more of that exceptional sound.

To finally put an end to our itching turkey, Canada's four-piece SEDATIVES throw these 11 ounces of Punkrock smack into the filthy gutters and back alleys of the record junkie underworld. Each of the anthemic songs is like a candy-like pill that suddenly develops its dark and dangerous effects and takes you for a mid-tempo three-chord-ride on pumping drums, downstroke guitars and church organ tunes that float in the air while a hell of a melodic voice sings of human failure and personal devastation. This is one good bag of an archaic Punkrock record with a sombre undertone and the dose of danger and catchyness that you seek for. The fierce "Cannot calm down" and "Superstitious minds" are already known from the first 7" and were now rerecorded with Skottie of THE CREEPS providing guest vocals, as well as Rob of the STATUES singing on the Überhit "Slip away", while new songs like the looming "Backlash", "Catastrophe", "No Time" or "Hollow in the heart" show that the band is up for more. So keep on scratching till the next time.

Don't miss them on their 2009 Europe Tour with our pals IDLE HANDS!
